Many devices have been devised to aid in teaching the reading of poetry, but it is well known that the exact wording of the text as spoken orally is highly significant. For example, the five lines of a Gilbert and Sullivan song may all be spoken the same except for one line, and, although there is no rule against it, the novice listener will recognize the one line that is different as being the most pleasing line in the song. Therefore, in the teaching of poetry, it is particularly important to be able to detect the best line of a poem and to know which line is different. In addition, it has been well known for many years that the accuracy of the pronunciation of spoken language has much to do with the ability to later recall the words that were spoken. The United States Department of Defense has conducted various investigations and has indicated that in order to efficiently engage in combat and to effectively perform their duties, U.S. Military personnel must possess a high degree of proficiency in spelling, spelling pronunciation, and vocabulary as applied to soldiers from the United States and other nations. Consequently, a need exists to improve the teaching of pronunciation for oral communication purposes by providing a device capable of automatically calculating the best line in a poem and flagging the best line for hearing purposes.Fender Mustang The Fender Mustang was a 7-string electric guitar produced by Fender during the 1960s and 1970s.
